Μ	ANAGEMENT RESPONSE TO INDEPENDENT EVALUATION OF THE GFF
Evaluation Title	Independent Evaluation of the GFF
Evaluation Year	2024-2025
	 To generate evidence, strengthen accountability, and enable learning on the GFF model (e.g. the country engagement model, operational structure, and related support modalities) and the 2021-2025 strategy. To inform course corrections and strengthening actions for the remainder of the Evaluation Objectives	current strategy period as well as inform the development of the next GFF strategy (2026 onwards).
	The GFF Secretariat appreciates the independent evaluation of the GFF conducted by Euro Health Group and Waci Health and welcomes the recommendations articulated in the report. The GFF Secretariat also appreciates the key role played by the Steering Committee that oversaw the evaluation, and notes the Steering Committee's conclusion that the evaluation meets the standards of quality, utility and independence as laid out in the GFF Evaluation Steering Committee Terms of Reference. As the first independent evaluation of the overall GFF model, this evaluation is critical for generating evidence, strengthening accountability and enabling learning. This evaluation will serve as an essential input to inform development of the next GFF strategy. The GFF Secretariat principally agrees with the recommendations from the evaluation, while noting that several important trade-off decisions will need to be made as part of the GFF strategy development process, which will take place between March and November of 2025. By design, this management response therefore focuses at high level, in recognition that key
GFF Secretariat	prioritization decisions will be made through that strategy development process.
Overall	Key risks, dependencies and definition of detailed roles and responsibilities will be
Response to the Evaluation	determined as part of operational planning the Secretariat will take forward as part of its regular work to prepare for delivery of the new strategy once it is finalized.

	RESPONSE TO SPECIFIC RECOMMENDATIONS
Recommen- dation 1	 Maintain the GFF and resource it appropriately (human and financial) to enable it to continue and strengthen delivering on its mandate to improve gender equality, equity and access in RMNCAH-N health services for women, children and adolescents. Use the next strategy and funding period to consolidate GFF efforts across its existing portfolio and only consider expansion in existing countries if resourcing is adequate. This will allow the GFF to further test, document and scale up its comparative advantages and value added within these countries. Put into operation and monitor the progress of the new partnership agreement between the World Bank regional offices and the GFF, to clarify roles and between the World Bank regional offices and the GFF, to clarify roles and responsibilities of the GFF and World Bank teams in countries. Define areas where the GFF personnel in countries can clarify and set out their comparative advantage to the World Bank in relationships with government officials to facilitate more consistent progress in implementing RMNCAH-N interventions, especially in gender, equity, and adolescent health and programing. Consider the development of a limited set of internal management indicators that would monitor progress on clarifying and strengthening the GFF/World Bank responsibilities. Conduct regular reviews and update internal agreement on ways of working as needed. Consider a 'maturity model' that builds on the differentiated approach outlined in the GFF's expansion plan, tailored to country income levels and specific contextual challenges. This model should provide a structured framework to identify and implement RMNCAH-N focused health financing approaches,
Secretariat Response	including PBF, that are most appropriate in politically challenging environment. Principally Agree. The new GFF strategy in development for the 2026-2030 period will define how the GFF model will be strengthened to deliver on its mandate to improve gender equality, equity and access in RMNCAH-N health services for women, children and adolescents. Costing, workforce planning and resource mobilization will be conducted in order to ensure that the GFF is fit-for-purpose and appropriately resourced to deliver on this mandate.

Overarching: Define the GFF strategy for the 2026-30 period in close coordination with GFF governance bodies, country partners, World Bank and a broader set of development partners in support of RMNCAH- N, with actions identified to strengthen the model in line with the recommendations from this evaluation. As part of the new partnership agreement, the GFF and World Bank will define: a) areas where the GFF can clarify and set out its comparative advantages, b) a limited set of internal management indicators, and c) a process for reviewing the management indicators together, with dialogue and joint actions to address opportunities and challenges that emerge.CountryJune 2025		June 2025
Recommen- dation 2	 2. Strategic communication and partnerships: Enhance and strengthen strategic engagement with partners in a country, including engagement of CSOs. Develop a public-facing country framework that details the strategy and intervention approach of the GFF in each country. Better communicate the country framework with partners, including how the GFF intends to work with development partners, and increase transparency with respect to results. Strengthen post-IC development engagement with relevant in-country development partners, including UN partners, to support the implementation of action to address gender and equity and mainstreaming in national health plans, budgets and programs. Differentiate the GFF approach by target partners (including government (MOF in addition to MOH), UN partners, relevant development partners including donors, and CSOs). Enhance CSO engagement in GFF country platforms by providing more consistent funding, capacity-building, and structured participation mechanisms to support their role in accountability, IC monitoring, and advocacy. Improve timely invitations, transparent selection processes, and collaboration frameworks to ensure meaningful and sustained involvement.

Further develop the initial draft of the HSS for RMNCAH-N framework and use it as a basis to bring more focus and clarity on GFF's HSS approach: namely, how the GFF relies on a country's health financing reform(s) to ensure that the other relevant levers (HMIS, HRH, commodities, etc.) and specific RMNCAH-N interventions can be strengthened for improved health of women, children and adolescents. Trade-offs will be addressed as part of the strategy development process (e.g., balancing a sharpening of focus on specific areas at strategy-wide level with the preservation of flexibility for countries to invest in the parts of the health system most critical for improving RMNCAH-N outcomes in their specific context). The HSS for RMNCAH-N framework will reaffirm the GFF's core focus on RMNCAH-N outcomes and define the parameters for ensuring there is no dilution of focus on the core mission. The HSS working group that feeds into the Joint Committee Working Group is one key process for strengthening coordination and alignment specifically with Gavi and the Global Fund, in line with the Lusaka Agenda. For the World Bank specifically, the partnership agreement will form the primary basis for strengthening how the Bank and the GFF internally collaborate and co-invest to strengthen health systems in order to improve RMNCAH-N outcomes. In partnership with the World Bank, continue and amplify use of analytics (e.g., strategies for health financing for RMNCAH-N and producing data on cost effectiveness of prioritized interventions) for advocacy. Continue and scale up support to resource pooling for health, as part of support to alignment of donor financing to prioritized areas, building on lessons learned from previous SWAps and latest fund pooling in Nigeria. Build on the GFF's valuable support for RMET and budget tracking initiatives. Where feasible, focus on strengthening national capacity for RMET to improve data-driven decision-making and accountability. Where possible, extend resource mapping to the sub-national level to provide a more detailed view of resource allocation and utilization. Continue providing TA to enhance domestic resource mobilization, strategic purchasing for RMNCAH-N services, risk pooling and PFM strengthening in contexts where the GFF can deliver clear value. Develop a more focused and strategic approach to the GFF's learning agenda, prioritize the generation of evidence on pathways to change and translate evidence into policy change and action. This should involve systematically evaluating and learning from its experience, to identify what works and what does not work and why, while strengthening cross-country learning. Reduce GFF's focus on developing learning materials and delivering country leadership training, given the limited measurable outcomes from these activities, the GFF's limited resources, and the potential for duplication with other development partner capacity building and leadership training initiatives. The GFF learning team should instead work with LOs and longer-term national consultants to consolidate and embed the knowledge and skills gained by government and CSO teams through the Country Leadership Program. Conduct an assessment of the contribution and impact of investments in CSO capacity building before committing to additional resources, ensuring that future investments are evidence-based and aligned with strategic priorities Provide more detailed reporting on GFF activities in each partner country. This could take the form of a report aligned with an annual workplan or similar framework including detailed information on GFF investments, influencing activities and their outcomes, and the corresponding results to enhance transparency and accountability.
